Sun of Death

👁 26 ✓ 2 ★ 2

Chapter 1 by Maarten van Elzelingen

WATCH OUT! Screams Jennifer if she sees that her astronaut partner just missed a meteorite.

Calm down! says Hank. You do not have to scream my ears off. I saw that one.

YOU SAW THAT ONE!? I HAVE MY DOUBTS! screams Jennifer, still scared of two seconds ago.

Yeah, but I think it just hit the steering rocket. I can not control the shuttle anymore, so we have to call for back-up.

Hank is trying to call back-up, but the only thing they hear is growling and howling.

The spacestation they are trying to contact lies near the Sun of Perolian.

A cold sun with a hard core inside.

Hank is trying to figure out why he is hearing howling through the radio.

The spacestation is secured very well and there is no way that it could be infiltrated.

Luckily they are close enough to see the spacestation.

LOOK! screams Jennifer...

wasn't a planet. It was a

Somehow, they had steered smack into it. Shattering radio contact with all space stations.

Jennifer was the first to awake. She opened her blue eyes wide and stared at the glittering ground surrounding her. "What the heck?!" She crawled over to Hank's bruised body and gently slapped him on the face. "Wake up man, you won't believe..."

Hank pried his eyes open and turned on his side. "Where are we?" He rubbed his face and stretched his sore body.

"Well, it seems highly improbable, but I think we may actually be on a star!" Jennifer grinned at the silly thought.

"Very funny Jen... Seriously though, did we land on Perolian?"

"Hank, I am being serious. If my calculations are correct, we are 1.5 light years away from the Sun of Perolian, and only getting farther from it."
